THE OLD MAN'S DRUNK AGAIN.

SONG AND CHORUS.

Allegretto. mf *ped. * ped. **

1. You're no doubt heard the song, Of "Fa-ther dear, come home. And the fate of hun-gry lit-tle Ben, Who sent for him to come; How the old man used to "smile," And cause the fami-ly pain, But he let up for a lit - tle while, And then got drunk a - gain.

CHORUS.

We've giv'n him up for gone, He's - ly - ing - in the lane, And al - most eve - ry bo - dy knows, The old man's drunk a - gain.

2. He takes his morning nip, And loafs about the door;
He told his family more than once, That he would drink no more;
But then he would forget From "benzine" to abstain,
The police, they would come and say, "The old man's drunk again."
Chorus.—We've given him up, &c.

2. He takes his morning nip,
And loafs about the door;
He told his family more than once,
That he would drink no more;
But then he would forget
From "benzine" to abstain,
The police, they would come and say,
"The old man's drunk again."
Chorus.—We've given him up, &c.

3. He'd smash poor mother's nose,
And upset brother Ned,
And drive us all into the street,
Then tumble into bed;
And when he'd be asleep,
We'd go back and remain,
Until he woke and left the house.
To come home drunk again.
Chorus.—We've given him up, &c.

4. "O! Father, dear, come home,"
Stop drinking like a sow;
You've drunk away the beds and stove,
Don't swallow up the cow;
O! don't abuse the boys,
And crush poor mother pain,
Or we'll rebel and "go for you,"
When you get drunk again.
Chorus.—We've given him up, &c.
